TEMPLATE 1: The Career Satisfaction Assessment -- 10-Point Checklist

Professionals complete this and immediately recognise the gap between where they are and where they want to be.

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

THE CAREER SATISFACTION ASSESSMENT

Are You Building a Career or Just Collecting Paycheques?

By [YOUR NAME], Career Coach | [YOUR BUSINESS]

Instructions: Check each statement that is TRUE for you right now.

1. I can articulate my career vision for the next 5 years with specificity -- not just a job title, but the type of work, impact, environment, and lifestyle I am building toward.
2. I am excited about my work at least 70% of the time. I look forward to Monday mornings more often than I dread them.
3. My current role uses my top 3 natural strengths daily. I know exactly what those strengths are and I can describe them in one sentence each.
4. I have had a meaningful career conversation (not just a performance review) with my manager or a mentor in the last 90 days. I have an active advocate for my career progression.
5. My compensation is within 10% of market rate for my role, experience, and location. I have researched this within the last 12 months and I am confident in the number.
6. I am learning and growing in my current role. I have acquired at least one significant new skill or capability in the last 6 months.
7. I have a professional network of at least 20 people I could reach out to for career advice, referrals, or opportunities -- and they would respond within a week.
8. I could update my CV or LinkedIn profile in under 2 hours with compelling, quantified achievements from the last 12 months. I have concrete results to showcase.
9. I have a financial runway (savings) that means I could leave a bad situation without desperation. I am not trapped by golden handcuffs or financial pressure.
10. I am making proactive career decisions rather than reactive ones. My last major career move was something I chose, not something that happened to me.

YOUR SCORE:

8-10 Checked: You are in the driver's seat. A career coach can help you negotiate your next move from a position of strength and accelerate your trajectory.

5-7 Checked: You have a solid career but you are coasting. Without intervention, you risk waking up in 5 years wondering where the time went. Now is the ideal time to get strategic.

2-4 Checked: You are stuck. Whether it is feeling undervalued, unsure of your direction, or trapped by circumstances -- these gaps are costing you income, fulfilment, and time you cannot get back.

0-1 Checked: You need a career intervention. The gap between your potential and your current reality is significant, and every month you delay widens it further.

TEMPLATE 2: 5 Career Mistakes Costing You GBP50K+ Over 5 Years -- Mini-Guide

This quantifies the cost of career drift and positions coaching as a financial investment, not an expense.

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

5 CAREER MISTAKES THAT ARE COSTING YOU GBP50,000+ OVER 5 YEARS

By [YOUR NAME], Career Coach

Most professionals lose tens of thousands of pounds over their career through avoidable mistakes. Not through incompetence, but through inaction, poor strategy, and undervaluing themselves. Here are the five most expensive ones.

MISTAKE 1: Staying in a Role Too Long Without Negotiating

The average internal pay rise is 3-5% annually. The average pay increase when changing roles (internally or externally) is 10-20%. If you have been in the same role for 3+ years without a significant salary adjustment, you are likely 15-30% below market rate.

On a GBP60,000 salary, that is GBP9,000-18,000 per year left on the table. Over 5 years, compounded with future raises built on a lower base, the total loss easily exceeds GBP50,000.

The Fix: Research your market value every 12 months using Glassdoor, LinkedIn Salary, and conversations with recruiters. Have a salary conversation with your manager annually, backed by data. If they cannot match market rate within 12 months, start exploring external opportunities.

MISTAKE 2: Not Building Your Personal Brand

The best opportunities do not get advertised. They go to people who are already visible and known in their field. If nobody in your industry knows who you are outside your current company, you are invisible to 90% of the opportunities that could transform your career.

The Fix: Publish one LinkedIn post per week sharing insights from your work (without revealing confidential information). Comment thoughtfully on posts from leaders in your field. Speak at one industry event per quarter, even if it is a small meetup. Within 12 months, you will have inbound opportunities you never knew existed.

MISTAKE 3: Chasing Job Titles Instead of Skill Portfolios

A fancy title at a declining company is worth less than a skill-building role at a growing one. The professionals who earn the most over their lifetime are not those who climbed the ladder fastest -- they are those who built the most valuable and transferable skill portfolio.

The Fix: Every 12 months, assess: what new skills have I built that are valuable outside this company? If the answer is not much, you are becoming institutionalised. Prioritise roles that build skills in high-demand areas: leadership, data literacy, commercial acumen, stakeholder management, and strategic thinking.

MISTAKE 4: Having No Career Allies or Sponsors

Mentors give advice. Sponsors give opportunities. Most professionals have neither. They rely solely on their work to speak for itself. But in every organisation, decisions about promotions, pay rises, and high-profile projects are made in rooms you are not in -- and you need someone in that room advocating for you.

The Fix: Identify 2-3 senior leaders who have influence over your career progression. Build genuine relationships with them (not transactional ones). Deliver visible results on their priorities. Ask explicitly: 'I am working toward [specific goal]. What would you need to see from me to feel confident advocating for me?'

MISTAKE 5: No Exit Strategy

Most professionals only think about their next move when they are unhappy. By then, they are making decisions from desperation rather than strategy. They take the first reasonable offer rather than the best aligned opportunity.

The Fix: Always have a current CV and LinkedIn profile ready. Take one recruiter coffee per quarter even when you are happy. Maintain a 'career options file' where you track potential opportunities, companies you admire, and skills you want to build. The best career moves are made from a position of strength.

TEMPLATE 4: The Job Search Accelerator -- Cheat Sheet

A practical reference card for professionals in active job search mode. Highly actionable and shareable.

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

JOB SEARCH ACCELERATOR CHEAT SHEET

The Strategic Approach to Landing Your Next Role Faster

By [YOUR NAME] | [YOUR WEBSITE]

CV QUICK WINS:

- Lead every bullet point with a quantified achievement, not a responsibility
- Bad: 'Managed a team of 12 people'
- Good: 'Led team of 12 to deliver GBP2.4M project 3 weeks early, saving GBP180K in costs'
- Maximum 2 pages (1 page for under 10 years experience)
- Tailor your CV for each application (yes, every single one)
- Remove anything older than 10 years unless it is directly relevant
- ATS-friendly format: no tables, columns, graphics, or fancy fonts

LINKEDIN OPTIMISATION:

- Headline: [Role You Want] | [Key Skill] | [Value You Deliver]
- Example: 'Operations Director | Scaling Teams from 10 to 100 | GBP50M+ P&L Experience'
- Banner image: professional, on-brand (Canva has free templates)
- About section: first person, conversational, focused on value (not a CV summary)
- Post 2-3 times per week to increase visibility to recruiters
- Set 'Open to Work' visible to recruiters only (not publicly)

NETWORKING STRATEGY:

- 80% of senior roles are filled through networks, not job boards
- Reach out to 5 new contacts per week with personalised messages
- Script: 'Hi [Name], I admire [specific thing about their career]. I am exploring [area] and would love 15 minutes of your perspective. Would you be open to a quick call?'
- Always ask: 'Who else should I be speaking to?' at the end of every conversation

INTERVIEW FRAMEWORK (STAR+):

- Situation: set the scene briefly (10% of answer)
- Task: what was your specific responsibility (10%)
- Action: what YOU did, step by step (60% -- this is the meat)
- Result: quantified outcome (15%)
- + Learning: what you took from it (5%)

SALARY NEGOTIATION RULES:

- Never give your current salary (it is irrelevant to the new role's value)
- Research market rate first (Glassdoor, recruiters, salary surveys)
- When asked for expectations: 'Based on my research, the market range for this role is GBP[X]-[Y]. I am looking for an offer that reflects the value I bring.'
- Negotiate the total package, not just base salary (bonus, equity, pension, flexible working, development budget)
- Always get the offer in writing before accepting verbally

JOB SEARCH METRICS TO TRACK:

- Applications submitted per week (target: 10-15 targeted, not 50 generic)

- Response rate (below 10% = CV needs work)
- Interview conversion (below 30% = application targeting needs work)
- Offer rate from final interviews (below 50% = interview prep needs work)

How to Use These Templates

Deploy these templates to attract ambitious professionals who are ready to invest in their careers.

- 1. Customise for Your Niche: Adjust salary figures and career examples to match your target audience (tech professionals, executives, mid-career pivoters, graduates, etc.). Replace generic examples with industry-specific ones. Add your credentials and relevant experience.
- 2. Choose Your Channels: LinkedIn is by far the most effective platform for career coaches. Publish the mini-guide as a LinkedIn article. Promote the cheat sheet as a downloadable PDF. Use the scorecard as an interactive quiz. Share career tips on LinkedIn 3-5 times per week to drive traffic to your opt-in page.
- 3. Build Your Email Funnel: Landing page with headline targeting your specific audience (e.g., 'Free: The Career Pivot Planner for Mid-Career Professionals'). 5-email nurture sequence: deliver template, share client success story, provide career market insights, address 'is coaching worth it?' objection, offer strategy session.

4. Partner Strategically: Connect with recruiters, HR professionals, and outplacement firms who can refer their contacts to your lead magnets. Offer to speak at university alumni events, professional associations, and corporate lunch-and-learns. These partnerships generate high-quality leads consistently.
5. Convert Through Value: Career coaching prospects are analytical and ROI-focused. Frame your strategy session around specific, measurable outcomes: 'In 30 minutes, we will identify the one move that could increase your income by GBP10,000-20,000 in the next 12 months.' Make the value of the call undeniable.
6. Scale with Content: Turn each template into 3-5 LinkedIn posts. Create video walkthroughs of the cheat sheet. Build a webinar around the 5 Mistakes guide. Interview past clients about their career transformations. Consistent content + lead magnets + nurture sequences = a predictable pipeline.

PRO TIPS FOR CAREER COACHES:

- LinkedIn is your primary platform. Invest 80% of your marketing effort there.
- The job search cheat sheet is your most shareable template -- professionals forward it to friends and colleagues.
- Corporate clients (companies buying coaching for employees) are your highest-value segment. Use the scorecard with HR departments.
- Career coaches who specialise in a specific transition (tech to consulting, corporate to startup, redundancy to reinvention) attract higher-paying clients than generalists.
- Always frame coaching as an investment with measurable ROI (salary increase, faster promotion, career satisfaction).
