

Executive Coaching Lead Magnet Template Pack 2026

5 Ready-to-Use Templates to Grow Your Executive Coaching Practice

Published by Sovereign Digital Agency

Updated March 2026

Sovereign Digital Agency - sovereigndigitalagency.co.uk.

Welcome to Your Lead Magnet Template Pack

Inside this pack you will find five professionally written, conversion-tested lead magnet templates designed specifically for executive coaches. Each template is ready to customise and deploy immediately to attract senior leaders, C-suite executives, and high-potential managers.

These templates are written in the language of business leaders -- strategic, data-informed, and results-focused. They position you as a peer-level advisor, not a generic coach.

Replace [YOUR NAME], [YOUR BUSINESS], and all bracketed placeholders with your own details.

TEMPLATE 1: The Executive Leadership Assessment -- 10-Point Diagnostic

This assessment helps senior leaders identify blind spots they rarely confront. It is designed to be used by both individuals and organisations evaluating coaching needs.

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

THE EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP DIAGNOSTIC

10 Questions Every Senior Leader Should Answer Honestly

By [YOUR NAME], Executive Coach | [YOUR BUSINESS]

Instructions: Rate each statement TRUE or FALSE based on your current reality, not your aspiration.

1. Strategic Clarity: My team could independently articulate our top 3 strategic priorities for this year, and every member understands how their role contributes to those priorities. (TRUE/FALSE)
2. Decision Quality: I make the majority of my decisions within 48 hours and I rarely revisit them. I have a clear framework for evaluating options and I am comfortable with imperfect information. (TRUE/FALSE)
3. Talent Development: I have identified my top 3 successors and I am actively developing them. If I were promoted or left tomorrow, the transition would be manageable within 30 days. (TRUE/FALSE)
4. Stakeholder Management: I have productive, trust-based relationships with all key stakeholders (board, peers, direct reports, investors, clients). There are no critical relationships I am avoiding or neglecting. (TRUE/FALSE)
5. Delegation Effectiveness: Less than 20% of my weekly time is spent on tasks that could be done by someone else. I delegate outcomes, not tasks, and my team has clear authority levels. (TRUE/FALSE)
6. Communication Impact: When I communicate a message to my team, it lands consistently. I do not need to repeat myself frequently, and my team would describe my communication style as clear and inspiring. (TRUE/FALSE)
7. Conflict Resolution: I address performance issues, interpersonal conflicts, and difficult conversations within 5 business days of becoming aware of them. I do not let issues fester. (TRUE/FALSE)
8. Executive Presence: In high-stakes meetings (board presentations, investor calls, crisis situations), I project confidence, composure, and clarity. I am the person people look to for direction under pressure. (TRUE/FALSE)
9. Personal Sustainability: I work fewer than 55 hours per week, take regular holidays, and have interests outside work that recharge me. My physical health, key relationships, and mental wellbeing are not being sacrificed for my career. (TRUE/FALSE)

- 10. Self-Awareness: I actively seek candid feedback (not just positive reinforcement) and I can describe my top 3 leadership strengths and top 3 development areas based on recent, external input. (TRUE/FALSE)

YOUR RESULTS:

8-10 TRUE: Exceptional leadership effectiveness. You are operating at a high level. An executive coach can help you navigate the next strategic challenge, prepare for board-level roles, or multiply your impact through your team.

5-7 TRUE: Strong leader with consequential blind spots. At senior levels, even small leadership gaps have outsized organisational impact. These gaps typically cost 2-5x their apparent size in team performance, retention, and strategic execution.

2-4 TRUE: Significant leadership development needed. This score at a senior level suggests either rapid promotion beyond current capability, a changed context requiring new skills, or accumulated patterns that have not been addressed. All are common and all are addressable.

0-1 TRUE: Leadership crisis territory. This is either a temporary situation (new role, major change) or a structural issue requiring urgent attention. Executive coaching combined with honest organisational feedback can create rapid transformation.

[YOUR NAME] works with senior leaders and C-suite executives on the challenges they cannot discuss with their team. Confidential introductory conversation available.

Schedule: [YOUR BOOKING LINK]

--- END TEMPLATE ---

TEMPLATE 2: 5 Leadership Mistakes That Derail Executive Careers -- Mini-Guide

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

5 LEADERSHIP MISTAKES THAT DERAIL OTHERWISE BRILLIANT EXECUTIVES

By [YOUR NAME], Executive Coach

These are not beginner mistakes. They are sophisticated, senior-level patterns that are invisible precisely because the executive is otherwise successful. Each one has ended or stalled careers at the highest levels.

MISTAKE 1: Being the Smartest Person in Every Room

You reached the top because of your intellect and expertise. Now that same strength has become a liability. When you are always the smartest person, your team stops thinking. They wait for your answer instead of developing their own. Innovation dies because nobody wants to look foolish in front of the brilliant boss.

Worse: you hire people who are less capable than you because they are easier to manage. Over time, your organisation becomes dependent on you and cannot function without your direct involvement.

The Fix: Shift from being the person with the answers to being the person with the best questions. In your next meeting, resist the urge to solve the problem. Instead, ask: 'What do you recommend, and what is your reasoning?' Force your team to bring solutions, not problems. Hire people who are smarter than you in their domain and give them genuine authority.

MISTAKE 2: Avoiding Difficult Conversations Until They Become Crises

You know the underperformer who needs to go. You know the peer relationship that is toxic. You know the strategy that is not working. But addressing it is uncomfortable, so you delay. You hope it resolves itself. It never does.

At the executive level, delayed difficult conversations do not just fester -- they metastasise. What was a 15-minute conversation 3 months ago is now a restructuring, a legal issue, or a board-level crisis.

The Fix: Adopt a 5-day rule. When you identify a difficult conversation that needs to happen, you have 5 business days to have it. Not perfect it. Not plan every word. Just have it. Schedule it immediately so it cannot be postponed indefinitely.

MISTAKE 3: Confusing Activity With Strategic Impact

Your diary is full. You are in back-to-back meetings from 8am to 6pm. You feel productive because you are constantly engaged. But how much of that activity is genuinely strategic?

Most executives spend 80%+ of their time on operational matters, stakeholder management, and firefighting -- leaving less than 20% for the strategic thinking that actually moves the organisation forward. This is a structural failure, not a time management issue.

The Fix: Audit your calendar for the last 2 weeks. Categorise every meeting and task as Strategic (moves the organisation toward its 3-year vision), Operational (keeps things running), or Reactive (responding to someone else's priority). If Strategic is below 30%, you need to restructure your role, not manage your time better.

MISTAKE 4: Leading in Isolation

The higher you go, the lonelier it gets. People filter what they tell you. Your direct reports manage up. Your peers are competitors. The board wants results, not vulnerability.

So you stop being honest about your challenges, doubts, and development needs. You project confidence 100% of the time. And slowly, you lose the self-awareness and external perspective that got you to this level.

The Fix: Build a personal board of advisors: 2-3 people outside your organisation who will tell you the truth. This might include an executive coach, a trusted former colleague, and a peer from a different industry. Meet them quarterly at minimum. Share the real challenges, not the curated version.

MISTAKE 5: Neglecting Your Own Development

You invest heavily in developing your team. You sponsor leadership programmes, hire coaches for high-potentials, and champion learning and development budgets. But when was the last time you invested in your own growth?

Many senior leaders stop developing because they believe they have arrived. Or because asking for help feels like admitting weakness. This is the beginning of obsolescence.

The Fix: Allocate a personal development budget of at least GBP5,000-10,000 per year and use it. Engage an executive coach. Attend a senior leadership programme at a top business school every 2-3 years. Read outside your industry. Learn from leaders in completely different domains.

[YOUR NAME] provides confidential executive coaching for senior leaders navigating complex challenges. Schedule an introductory conversation: [\[YOUR BOOKING LINK\]](#)

--- END TEMPLATE ---

TEMPLATE 3: The Executive 90-Day Impact Plan -- Worksheet

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

THE EXECUTIVE 90-DAY IMPACT PLAN

A Strategic Planning Framework for Senior Leaders

By [YOUR NAME] | [YOUR BUSINESS]

This worksheet is designed for executives entering a new role, taking on expanded responsibilities, or seeking to reset their leadership impact.

SECTION 1: STRATEGIC CONTEXT

Organisation's top 3 priorities this year:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

My role's contribution to each:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

The single most important outcome I must deliver in 90 days: _____

SECTION 2: STAKEHOLDER MAP

Key stakeholders and current relationship quality (1-10):

Board/Investors: _____ Quality: ____/10

Direct manager/CEO: _____ Quality: ____/10

Peer 1: _____ Quality: ____/10

Peer 2: _____ Quality: ____/10

Peer 3: _____ Quality: ____/10

Direct report team overall quality: ____/10

Key external stakeholder: _____ Quality: ____/10

My most critical relationship to strengthen: _____

Action to take this week: _____

SECTION 3: TEAM ASSESSMENT

For each direct report, assess:

Name | Performance (A/B/C) | Potential (High/Medium/Low) | Retention Risk (High/Medium/Low)

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

5. _____

6. _____

A-players I need to retain and develop: _____

C-players I need to address within 90 days: _____

Critical hire I need to make: _____

SECTION 4: 90-DAY PRIORITIES

Days 1-30 -- Listen and Learn:

- Key conversations to have: _____

- Data and reports to review: _____

- Quick wins to deliver: _____

Days 31-60 -- Align and Decide:

- Strategic decisions to make: _____

- Team changes to implement: _____

- Processes to improve: _____

Days 61-90 -- Execute and Accelerate:

- Major initiatives to launch: _____
- Results to deliver: _____
- Foundation to set for the next quarter: _____

SECTION 5: PERSONAL LEADERSHIP

The leadership behaviour I will be known for: _____

The leadership habit I need to change: _____

My non-negotiable personal boundaries: _____

How I will maintain my energy and perspective: _____

[YOUR NAME] helps senior leaders maximise their impact in critical roles. Confidential consultation: [YOUR BOOKING LINK]

--- END TEMPLATE ---

TEMPLATE 4: The Executive Decision-Making Cheat Sheet -- Quick Reference

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

EXECUTIVE DECISION-MAKING CHEAT SHEET

Frameworks for High-Stakes Leadership

By [YOUR NAME] | [YOUR WEBSITE]

DECISION-MAKING FRAMEWORKS:

Reversible vs. Irreversible (Bezos Method):

- Type 1 (irreversible): deliberate carefully, gather data, involve key stakeholders
- Type 2 (reversible): decide fast, execute, correct course. Most decisions are Type 2.

10-10-10 Rule:

- How will I feel about this decision in 10 minutes? (Emotional check)
- How will I feel in 10 months? (Strategic check)
- How will I feel in 10 years? (Legacy check)

Pre-Mortem Analysis:

- Imagine the decision failed. Write down why.
- Now address those failure modes before deciding.
- This reveals blind spots that post-decision analysis misses.

STAKEHOLDER COMMUNICATION:

Upward (Board/CEO):

- Lead with the conclusion, then support with data
- Present 3 options with your recommendation (never just one or more than 3)
- Quantify impact in financial terms they care about
- Address risks proactively -- never let them discover risks independently

Lateral (Peer Executives):

- Understand their priorities before asking for support
- Frame requests in terms of mutual benefit
- Build credit before you need to spend it
- Never surprise a peer in a public meeting

Downward (Team):

- Explain the WHY before the WHAT
- Be honest about difficulty without creating fear
- Ask for input before announcing decisions (when possible)
- Follow up to ensure the message landed as intended

CRISIS LEADERSHIP PROTOCOL:

1. Stabilise: stop the bleeding before diagnosing the cause
2. Communicate: acknowledge the situation within hours, not days
3. Investigate: gather facts before assigning blame
4. Decide: make the best decision with available information
5. Learn: conduct a blameless post-mortem within 7 days

TIME AND ENERGY MANAGEMENT:

- CEO-level time allocation: 30% strategy, 30% people, 20% stakeholders, 20% operations
- Energy audit: identify your peak performance hours and protect them for strategic work
- Meeting hygiene: every meeting needs a decision-maker, agenda, and outcome
- Say no by default; say yes only when it serves your top 3 priorities

LEADERSHIP PRESENCE:

- Silence is a tool. Pause before speaking in high-stakes situations.
- Ask questions more than you make statements.
- Be the calmest person in the room during a crisis.
- Consistency builds trust. Volatility destroys it.

COMMON EXECUTIVE DERAILERS TO WATCH:

- Micromanagement (signal: you are in more than 30 meetings/week)
- Conflict avoidance (signal: you have not had a difficult conversation in 30+ days)
- Information hoarding (signal: decisions cannot happen without you present)
- Burnout denial (signal: you have not taken a full week off in 6+ months)

[YOUR NAME] provides confidential coaching for executives navigating complexity. Introductory conversation: [YOUR BOOKING LINK]

--- END TEMPLATE ---

TEMPLATE 5: Rate Your Leadership Effectiveness -- Executive Scorecard

--- BEGIN TEMPLATE ---

EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP EFFECTIVENESS SCORECARD

By [YOUR NAME], Executive Coach

Rate each statement from 1 to 5.

1 = Strongly Disagree | 2 = Disagree | 3 = Neutral | 4 = Agree | 5 = Strongly Agree

SECTION A -- STRATEGIC LEADERSHIP:

- A1. My team can articulate our strategy without my prompting. ____
- A2. I spend 30%+ of my time on strategic rather than operational work. ____
- A3. I make decisions quickly and rarely revisit them. ____
- A4. I am building the organisation's capability for the next 3 years, not just this quarter. ____
- A5. I regularly challenge assumptions and question the status quo. ____

Section A Total: ____/25

SECTION B -- PEOPLE LEADERSHIP:

- B1. My top performers would say I am the best leader they have worked for. ____
- B2. I have identified and am developing my successors. ____
- B3. I address performance issues within 5 business days of identifying them. ____
- B4. My team retention rate is above 85% annually. ____
- B5. I delegate outcomes, not tasks, and trust my team to deliver. ____

Section B Total: ____/25

SECTION C -- COMMUNICATION AND INFLUENCE:

- C1. My messages land consistently -- I rarely need to repeat or clarify. ____
- C2. I adapt my communication style for different stakeholders. ____
- C3. I am comfortable presenting to boards, investors, and media. ____
- C4. I create psychological safety -- my team shares bad news without fear. ____
- C5. I am known for being direct, honest, and respectful simultaneously. ____

Section C Total: ____/25

SECTION D -- SELF-LEADERSHIP:

- D1. I actively seek and act on candid feedback about my leadership. ____
- D2. I manage my energy and avoid chronic overwork. ____
- D3. I have trusted advisors outside my organisation who challenge my thinking. ____

D4. I invest in my own development as seriously as I invest in my team's. ____

D5. I model the behaviours I expect from my organisation. ____

Section D Total: ____/25

SECTION E -- ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

E1. My organisation is stronger now than when I joined. ____

E2. I have built systems and capabilities that will outlast my tenure. ____

E3. I am known for delivering measurable results, not just activity. ____

E4. I create alignment across functions and eliminate silos. ____

E5. External stakeholders (board, clients, partners) view my leadership positively. ____

Section E Total: ____/25

GRAND TOTAL: ____/125

100-125: Exceptional Executive. You are operating at the highest level. Coaching can refine your edge and prepare you for board-level impact.

75-99: Effective Executive. Strong in most dimensions with specific areas that limit your full potential. These are the gaps that separate good leaders from great ones.

50-74: Developing Executive. Competent but with structural leadership gaps. At the executive level, these gaps have outsized impact on the organisation.

25-49: Executive in Transition. Whether new to the level or facing a changed context, significant development is needed to deliver at this altitude.

[YOUR NAME] provides confidential executive coaching for senior leaders. Schedule an exploratory conversation:
[YOUR BOOKING LINK]

--- END TEMPLATE ---

How to Use These Templates

Executive coaching requires a more sophisticated marketing approach than other coaching niches. Here is how to deploy these templates effectively.

1. Customise for Seniority: Adjust language to reflect the level of leader you serve (VP, C-suite, Managing Director, Founder). Executive prospects are sophisticated buyers -- avoid hype, buzzwords, or anything that feels like mass-market coaching. Use business language, not coaching jargon.
2. Choose Premium Channels: LinkedIn is your primary platform -- publish thought leadership articles, not motivational posts. Speak at executive leadership events, YPO/EO chapters, and industry conferences. Partner with executive search firms, PE/VC firms, and board advisory services who can refer coaching needs. Avoid Instagram and TikTok for this audience.

3. Position as a Strategic Advisor: Executive coaching prospects do not want to be 'fixed.' They want a thinking partner, sounding board, and strategic advisor. Your marketing should reflect this: 'Confidential coaching for senior leaders navigating complex challenges' outperforms 'Transform your leadership!'
4. Gate Your Content Appropriately: Consider making the full assessment and scorecard available only after a brief qualification conversation. This positions your content as exclusive and premium, not freely available to everyone. The mini-guide and cheat sheet can be more widely distributed.
5. Leverage Corporate Buyers: 60%+ of executive coaching is paid for by organisations, not individuals. Market to HR Directors, Chief People Officers, and Talent Development leaders. The leadership assessment is an excellent tool for positioning coaching within a corporate development programme.
6. Build Referral Networks: Executive coaching thrives on referral. Deliver exceptional results for every client and ask for specific introductions: 'Who else at your level is navigating a similar challenge?' One great referral is worth 100 cold leads at this level.

PRO TIPS FOR EXECUTIVE COACHES:

- Confidentiality is paramount. Never name-drop clients without explicit permission. The fact that executives trust you with their challenges IS your marketing.
- Pricing signals quality. Executive coaching under GBP500/session signals inexperience. The market ranges from GBP500-2,000+ per session for credible executive coaches.
- Your own credentials and experience matter more in this niche than any other. Board experience, C-suite background, or prestigious certifications (ICF MCC, Marshall Goldsmith certification, etc.) significantly increase credibility.
- Published thought leadership (articles, books, speaking) is your best marketing. One Harvard Business Review article is worth more than 1,000 social media posts.
- The executive assessment is your most powerful tool for corporate clients. Offer it as a team-wide diagnostic to open the door to multi-coach engagements.

Need help positioning your executive coaching practice? Visit sovereigndigitalagency.co.uk for premium marketing strategy.

This template pack is provided by Sovereign Digital Agency. All templates are fully customisable for your coaching brand. Replace bracketed placeholders with your business details before distribution.

Get more guides & checklists at: <https://sultanwave32.gumroad.com>

Copyright 2026 Sovereign Digital Agency. All rights reserved.